Expenses Low at Portland Fair.

People looking for vacation bargains are finding the Lewis and Clark Exposition the "cheapest and best" thing offered this summer, for, besides the attractions of the big Western World's Fair, Portland can offer visitors a sea-shore climate, mountain scenery, and accommodations at lower rates than ever before have been in effect during a big fair. The cheapness of the accommodations is not due to the size of the crowds, for these have been much larger than was expected, but to the fact that so many people in Portland have gone into the lodging house business. Portland normally has more room for visitors than most cities of its size, on account of the large number of boarding and lodging houses and this year a large number of new hotels have been erected.

In the immediate vicinity of the fair grounds, there are temporary boarding and lodging houses with a grand total of 2,670 rooms, while the American Inn, within the grounds, has 585 rooms and can accommodate 1,200 people. There are also several new, first-class hotels down town.

The average price for lodging, $1 a person per night, which was in effect at the beginning of the ir, has been reduced rather than raised. Where two or more people are willing to occupy the same room, a fifty-cent rate for each lodger will buy excellent accommodations. If one desire higher priced and more luxurious accommodations, he can find hotels that will supply him. The American Inn has rooms at various prices, and the more expensive ones have every luxurious equipment for the comfort of patrons.

Portland restaurants are favorably known for their cheapness and the excellence of their fare. Meals should cost on the average, say, one dollar per day, figuring twenty-five cents each for breakfast and luncheon, and fifty cents for evening dinner. This may be cut down perhaps twenty-five cents a day if one so desires. Admission to the fair grounds during the daytime is fifty cents, and at night twenty-five cents. Most people prefer to take their evening meal on the grounds, and one admission a day is an average. Allowing fifty cents more for Trail shows, souvenirs, and little extras, the schedule of expenses for a five-day stay at the Fair would be:

Lodging	$ 2 50
Meals	5 00
Admissions and incidentals	5 00
Total for 5 days	$12 50

If one desires to stay ten days, and every one who possibly can should do so, the necessary expenses may be reduced slightly by figuring Trail shows and incidentals at twenty-five instead of fifty cents per day. Allowing the same amount for daily incidentals for the longer stay, however, permits the visitor to take in a number of delightful and inexpensive scenery trips.

Fell Dead.

A man fell dead in Chicago the other day from heart trouble, and thousands die every day in the same way. But the cause of nine out of ten of such cases of heart trouble is indigestion. The cure is Dr. Caldwell's (laxative) Syrup Pepsin. The explanation is that the swollen, inflamed, and engorged stomach, presses right up against the heart and prevents it from working; your heart flutters, palpitates, pains, and you are short of breath; some lose it forever. Just try for these symptoms a few doses of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and see how quickly it will cure you. Sold by Arcadia Valley Drug Co. at 50c and $1.00. Money back if it fails.

The Decay of Kings.

Europe is a bit worried over a matter that seems trivial when compared with international disturbances.

It seems that a lot of princelings are getting in an extra large stock of wild oats and are determined to throw discredit on the king business.

One of them, who has recently ascended a throne, has given his people a chill by knighting a stablekeeper.

Another one, just at good spunking age, has fought two duels, accumulated a choice assortment of debts and bad habits and has announced that he will make things simply howl when he gets closer to the royal money chest.

Still another sought pleasure in such degrading forms that he was given the royal hoot where it would do the most good and fled to Paris. There he shocked even the Parisians by his profligacy, which is a good deal like the devil being too tough for the bottomless pit. There are plenty more that can be put in the same list.

Well, what does the world expect? We reap as we sow. The good old rules make no exceptions when they strike royalty.

There are not to exceed three thrones in all Europe on which normal men or women are seated.

Intermarriage, high living, bad habits and a popular superstition that a person having blue blood in his or her scrofulous system can be denied no pleasure, no matter how insane or sensuous, has brought about the natural sequel. We have kings and queens who are half insane, mentally and physically weak, spineless, and in some cases degenerate.

There is mighty little encouragement for the rising generation of princes who might possibly think of growing up clean and high-minded.

In Europe, humanity shouts, "God save the king," even if that king be a leper, by the acts of his ancestors, and fostered by his own habits.

No, it isn't pleasant to think about what is coming to future generations in Europe. — Kansas City World.

Rheumatism.

When pains or irritation exist on any part of the body, the application of Ballard's Snow Liniment gives prompt relief. E. W. Sullivan, proprietor of Sullivan House, El Reno, O. T., writes, June 6, 1902: "I take pleasure in recommending Ballard's Snow Liniment to all who are afflicted with rheumatism. It is the only remedy I have found that gives immediate relief." 25c, 50c, $1. Sold by Arcadia Valley Drug Co.

He was sitting on the side of the track and, it is supposed, was tying his shoe, and being deaf he did not hear the train. He is a brother of Dr. Bates of Piedmont.

On Monday morning about 7 o'clock, Tom Lewis, a deaf and dumb man, who has been living with Fritz Warnicke, near Benson's Switch, was walking on the track and the fast mail, No. 7, struck him, killing him instantly. He had been living around Annapolis for twenty-five years. Dr. Clarkson, the coroner, held an inquest over his body. ISAAC.
